Jacob E. Whisler
(1808-1898)

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this study on the family Whisler has been to preserve the records available for our posterity, and it has been said that a family - the core of our society - should keep a record whether rich or poor, unrenowned or famous, literate or learned.

The dedication of this history is to Adella Whisler Applegate of Cicero, Indiana. Months ago she answered correspondence to that name and address which I found in addresses of Ella Kirkpatrick Wishart. She wrote, "I received your letter, and I am Adella Whisler Applegate, the daughter of John Whisler, granddaughter of Jacob Whisler. Jane Kirkpatrick was my father's sister and my aunt. I am 83 years old and live alone...I would be very glad to give any information I can". Week after week, she has devoted keen interest in this project and handled a volume of correspondence and research. Without her help, this family tree would have been impossible. She deserves the highest praise for her assistance.

The Whislars came from the state of Pennsylvania. The term "Pennsylvania Dutch" collectively means the descendants of immigrants to Pennsylvania in the 17th and 18th centuries from Germany and Switzerland. Their qualities have been widely publicized; not because the Pennsylvania Dutch sought publicity, but because so many of the Amish, the Mennonites, the Dunkards and the River Brethren sects have been firm in retaining their quaint old-world customs, even though surrounded by a fast moving, modern world. While all are not plain people and do not wear picturesque dresses, bonnets, beards or broad brimmed hats, all - including those in modern dress - have kept their reputations for honesty, thriftiness, extreme cleanliness and a love of good food. Nowadays, a few still speak with a dialect, indulge in old style home remedies and retain odd superstitions. But they are proud of their past connections and do not want to forget their language. The Pennsylvania Dutch have been called the best agriculturists in the world, and their barns are testimony in this direction, at least. They eat well, and of good variety, and the women spend long hours in the preparation of meals that are as they express it, "Wonderful good"!

From Pennsylvania, our Whislars pioneered to the Hoosier state (Indiana), admitted to the Union in 1816. To make "a blotz in de soon" (a place in the sun), they wanted. And after the trees were cut and the cabin built and the brush cleared and the stumps uprooted and the rails split and the rail fence built and, at long last, the earth broken with the plow and the first crop gathered, they licked the wilderness of FRONTIER INDIANA.

PART I - JOHN WHISLER²

A search was made to verify the name, birthdate, and the family of our immigrant ancestor, John Whisler², b 30 Jan 1770, somewhere in Europe - presumedly in one of the German Provinces. The United States Census Schedules gave evidence of proof showing this information. We know that he and his parents came to America, ca. 1771, and eventually located in Pennsylvania; records found would indicate that they were among the immigrants known as Pennsylvania German. No given name was found for the father of John², but it may have been Jacob¹. However, there was a large family of perhaps ten or more children...In Looking-up the derivation of the surname, it dates back to Middle English, and simply means 'one who whistles'. Various spellings are found, but most common are Whisler, and Whistler. Our family omitted the 't'...In 1790, we found people of the surname living in Lancaster (the heart of the Pennsylvania Dutch country) Montgomery, Berks, Bucks, Chester Counties, and in Philadelphia; thus, it was a common name. From the 1810 Federal Census, we found the following Whislars living in Cumberland Co., in the Mifflin Township; Peter, Christian, Abraham, Christian, Jr., John (our ancestor), Jacob and Christian - all heads of the household...John Whisler m ca. 1790, to Christine Engle, b 19 October 1769, a Pennsylvania Dutchman. They resided in Cumberland Co., near Harrisburg, where their children were born. Later, our Whisler ancestor and his family moved to Wayne County, Indiana, ca. 1831) They were adherents of the Dunkard Society (German Baptist Brethern)...as might be compared to Mennonites, Quakers and other like conservative religious orders...Christine d 1841; John d 1848...In our survey of printed volumes and genealogies, we were fortunate to find a private manuscript on the Smith Family. The following excerpts have been quoted:

"The oldest member of the Whisler family of whom we have positive knowledge was John Whisler, who was b 30 Jan 1770, somewhere in Europe, presumedly in one of the German provinces. Although all efforts to trace him to his birthplace have failed, he was unquestionably of Teutonic blood. Tradition has it that he was brought across the Atlantic by his parents when a baby, after a stormy voyage of 19 weeks, during which every other infant aboard perished. At what seaport they landed we do not know, but he was brought to Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, where he grew to manhood. Of his family we know little, save that he had at least two brothers, one named Christopher. In due time, he was m to Christine Engle, b 19 October 1769, presumably in Cumberland Co., Pennsylvania. Of her people we know nothing save that she belonged to that sturdy stock known as "Pennsylvania Dutch", and it is said she never learned to speak the English language. They became the parents of 8 children: 3 sons and 5 daughters. The sons were named: Christopher, John and Jacob; the daughters were: Nancy, Mattie, Mary and Catherine. The name of one daughter who died at the early age of 18, is unknown. Catherine the youngest daughter became the grandmother of our generation and was b 7 April 1810. Christopher d in Lancaster County, shortly after his marriage.

John Whisler, being of German blood, worked hard and lived economically, and became the owner of one of the finest farms in that section of the state. He and his family adhered strongly to the Dunkard Faith, which at that time was opposed to any participation in political affairs. At one time, he was brought before the church authorities for having voted for the Governor of his state, and he was made to acknowledge that he had committed a grievous sin; although the family later became staunch Whigs, and upon the death of that organization they joined the Republican Party and became the most attached partisans. After his children were grown, unfortunate endorsements lost him all his worldly possessions, and he was forced to move away from his fine farm.

The Whisler family had many strong traits of character. They were aggressive and carried the contest to their opponent. It might be said that they possessed convictions without tolerance. They also had the inclination and ability toward scholarship. They spent long hours studying any subject which interested them, more especially religion and politics which they dearly loved to discuss. John Whisler, Jr. afterward became a Christian minister, and Jacob a school teacher. Honesty was another of their traits, in proof of which is the fact that Grandfather Whisler continued to pay the interest on the old debt in Pennsylvania, after losing every dollar he possessed, even when he was forced to make ax handles, which he carried on his shoulder to the market to obtain the money. Wealth receives its rewards in the flesh, honesty like genius, only beyond the grave. The Whislers were a hospitable people entertaining considerable company.

The West and for decades thereafter, offered many inducements to those who were willing to undergo privations and toil in order to obtain homes of their own. Accordingly, John Whisler, Jr. was sent to view the land of promise. He walked the entire distance from Eastern Pennsylvania to Wayne County, Indiana, average 40 miles per day. His report was favorable and both the Smiths and Whislers' families left Pennsylvania for the West near the same time, probably in the Fall 1831, or the year 1832, whether by mere coincidence or mutual understanding we are not informed...The Smith family settled near Wooster, Ohio where the sons became farmers and prospered. The Whislers family came farther west and settled in Wayne Co., Indiana...John, Jr.

and Jacob Whisler also came from Wayne County, about this time, to Tipton County - John settling east and Jacob south of Tipton. Jacob had been in his new home only a comparatively short time when his wife became mentally ill, which rendered her incapable of caring for her family. Believing that he could hold his family together if he had someone to oversee his household, he went to Wayne County, and brought his parents back to reside with him. While living in Tipton County with her son, the mother sickened and d 14 Nov 1841, and was buried in the Goodykrontz Cemetery, 1 mile north of the present town of Atlanta. John Whisler then went back to Wayne County to make his home with the daughters who resided there. He lived 7 years after the death of his wife, passing away on 31 March 1848 and was buried near Economy, in Wayne County, Indiana...In the year of 1844, Tipton County was organized the first election being held on the 17 May of that year. The record tells that Jacob Whisler was the first treasurer of that county. The county continued to grow in population and wealth...''

The children of John and Christine Whisler of whom we have information are: John, Jr., Mary, Jacob, and Catherine. The others are listed, but not according to age.

JACOB E. WHISLER (brother of John, Jr.)³, b 5 Sept 1808, Cumberland Co., Pennsylvania, a s of John and Christine (Engle) Whisler. He went to the County of Wayne, Indiana. He m 23 October 1826*, to Lovenia Davidson, Native of Indiana, the dau of _____ and Bershebia Davidson. In 1837 they moved to Tipton County, Indiana, where Lovenia became hopelessly mentally ill and was confined to Tipton Infirmary Institution and died there. Loven-ia had a brother, Arthur Davidson. On 23 April 1846, Jacob remarried to Lydia Gresh Laudig, widow of John Laudig, with 5 children: Abner, Anna, Elizabeth, Benjamin, and Sarah J. Laudig.

 Lydia Gresh was b May 1814, Berks County, Pennsylvania. They combined their families and had issue of their own. Only two children, Martha and Jane, lived outside the Jacob Whisler household. Res 3 miles w. of Atlanta (formerly Buena Vista), Indiana; and Millersburg (Hamilton Co.) - near Arcadia, where he operated a grist mill and store. She d 18 June 1885; he d 7 March 1898, and both buried in Scherer (Crown Hill) Cemetery, Arcadia, Indiana. We found in The Indianapolis NEWS, Indianapolis, Indiana, the following article printed 18 Feb 1894. "Pioneer Jacob E. Whisler - The first treasurer of the County of Tipton, living today in Little Hamlet of Millersburg, and enjoying the blessings incident to a well-spent life - His history as narrated to a special correspondent..." Atlanta, Indiana. The first treasurer of Tipton County is living with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Long, near the "little Hamlet" of Millersburg. His name is Jacob E. Whisler, and if he lives until the 5 day of next Sept., he will be 86 yrs. old. He was b near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, in 1808, and he came to Wayne Co., Indiana, in 1831. In the year 1837, he moved to Tipton County, Indiana, and settled about 3 miles west of Atlanta. At that time, this county had not yet been layed-off, and Mr. Whisler was with the commissioners appointed by the Governor when they surveyed and layed-off the county. In 1844, Mr. Whisler was elected Treas. of the newly formed county of Tipton. At that time, there were but 83 voters living in the county; there were 3 candidates running in the field, but Mr. Whisler received 42 votes and was thus elected by a plurality of one vote, being elected on the Whig party ticket though party lines were not closely contested. Mr. Whisler served in the capacity of Treas., 1844-7. For the first year, his salary was $83. The total value of taxables in Tipton County was $170, 308.00 in 1844. The total value of taxable property today, 1894, was $8, 543, 145.00, and the total taxes were $114, 884.04. The first court house was a rude, log-affair and was built in 1845, Mr. Whisler having chunk-ed and daubed the cracks between the logs with his own hands. (He also made the shingles for the first jailhouse.) The second courthouse, built around 1858, preceded the later and magnificent brick and stone structure which rose upon the spot where the old house stood and which was completed two years ago, 1891. Mr.
 Whisler has seen this building but once; he had a fall two years ago which crippled him and although his general health is excellent, he does not get away from home. When Mr. Whisler was asked by the representative of the NEWS to relate reminiscences of those pioneer days, his face lighted-up and in a clear and intelligent manner he related the following incidents:-

TIPTON IN EARLY DAYS

Tipton County, at the time when I first settled there, was nothing but one vast swamp and unbroken forest, but it was not long until farms were cleared and the rich soil began to produce abundant crops. Indians often camped where the city of Tipton now stands, and I have met them and traded with them here. The first jury that was ever empanelled in Tipton, sat upon logs in the woods and rendered a verdict in a slander case. I was on that jury and there is but one other of the jurors living, Samuel Deals. (Here the correspondent interrupted Mr. Whisler to inform him that Mr. Deals death had been reported in the NEWS quite recently.) Is that so!!!? Is Sam Deals dead, inquired Mr. Whisler? Then I am the sole survivor of that jury. The first judges were Joseph Moore and Dr. Silas Blount. I remember in the progress of the slander suit, two lawyers, Garver V. Stone of Noblesville, became so excited that the lie was passed. Then a young lawyer of Kokomo, called the attention of the Court to the matter and insisted that they should be fined. The Court didn't know a great deal about Law, but the judge imposed a fine of $1.00 against each which was remitted next day. The first 3 Commissioners of Tipton County, were Thomas Jackson, Robt. Davidson, and John D. Smith. The first sheriff was Wm. Herrington. Carter Jackson was the first Representative from Tipton, and the first and only Democrat I have ever voted for! Newton J. Jackson was the first clerk of Tipton Co., and owned the first frame house ever built here. This house was built by Jacob W. Whisler, who now lives in Arcadia and is in his 84th year, and who (by the way) is in no way related to me. I helped to move Mr. Jackson into his new home.

DUTIES AS TREASURER

My duties as Treas. compelled me at that early day to see that no delinquents got away without paying their taxes. At one time, I heard that a man who was delinquent intended to move out of the county on a certain Sunday. On Saturday, I went to see him and demanded the payment of the tax delinquency, but he claimed that he had no property except a gun and an ax. He asked me to return about 8 o'clock that same night when he would see what he could do. I returned at the appointed time and found my man sitting in bed and nothing on but his shirt and pants, with the gun and ax across his knees. He looked at me in a ferocious way as if to say "collect your taxes if you can". At that moment, there was a knock at the door. A neighbor entered and informed that man whom I had come to see that he wanted to pay him some money for something he had bought from him. I demanded that the money be paid into my hands which was done, and informed the would-be tax dodger that he could get his receipt and change at my office. I departed leaving a very angry man sitting dumfounded in bed!

WHISKEY AT LOG ROLLINGS

It was the custom in the backwoods in those early days to provide plenty of whiskey at log rollings. I had the first log rolling in Tipton County, where whiskey was not used, and after that the custom of providing whiskey fell into disuse. I was never under the influence of liquor but once, and that was on the 17 Feb 1831. I was not so much under its influence, however, as to be unable to cross the Susquehanna River on the ice. When I first settled in Tipton County, our nearest towns were Cicero and Strawtown, and the nearest mill where we had to go to get our grain ground was Femps Mill on White River, just above Strawtown. Frequently, when the mill was crowded we had to go to Anderson. I am a miller by trade, and once owned an interest in a mill in this little village, Millersburg. There were 4 Jacob Whislars at that time, and to distinguish between them, they called one, Miller Jake; another, one eyed Jake; Dandy Jake and the other, Black Jake. (Despite his age, Mr. Whisler is a pleasant talker and has the full use of his faculties.) Mr. Whisler was a faithful and consistent member of the M. E. and Evangelical Churches for 66 yrs.

One record stated that Jacob E. Whisler was the father of 15 children. We have listed only those of which we found actual records. *There is doubt as to the date of his first marriage, as being 1826, but rather 1836. But no definite record was found. See Part I for more information.

She d 19 March 1920, and both buried Milburn Cemetery - later removed to Memphis Cemetery, Jane Whisler, in later years of life, smoked a small, clay pipe - as was the custom for women of that day. They usually did so in the privacy of their bedroom, or outside the house. The story has been handed down as to what happened to her pipe. Somehow a rifle cartridge got mixed-up in the small can of tobacco she used for her pipe. When she lighted up her pipe to smoke, the shell exploded and lodged in the ceiling and her little clay pipe was broken to bits. Luckily, she was uninjured. Whether the reader takes this as a vice or an interesting sideline of her life, she was a fine Christian mother to educate and rear 10 children to maturity without the aid of father.

C. MARTHA WHISLER⁴ was a dau of Jacob and Lovenia (Davidson) Whisler, but we were unable to find any record of her birthdate or birthplace, whether in Wayne or Tipton County, Indiana. We do believe that she lived outside the home of her father, as did her sister, Jane, and perhaps she is the person listed as i.
